DETAILED ACTION

1. Claim 17 is pending in this application per Oct. 23, 2008 amendment.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claim is directed to non-statutory subject matter, software per se.

The claim lacks the necessary physical articles or objects to constitute a machine or a manufacture within the meaning of 35 USC 101. They are clearly not a series of steps or acts to be a process nor are they a combination of chemical compounds to be a composition of matter. As such, they fail to fall within a statutory category. They are, at best, functional descriptive material per se.

Descriptive material can be characterized as either "functional descriptive material" or "nonfunctional descriptive material." Both types of "descriptive material" are nonstatutory when claimed as descriptive material per se, 33 F.3d at 1360, 31 USPQ2d at 1759. When functional descriptive material is recorded on some computer-readable medium, it becomes structurally and functionally interrelated to the medium and will be statutory in most cases since use of technology permits the function of the descriptive material to be realized. Compare In re Lowry, 32 F.3d 1579, 1583-84, 32 USPQ2d

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dunagan et al. (US 2005/0076104: hereinafter Dunagan), in view of Official Notice.

For claim 17, Dunagan discloses an enhanced publish/subscribe messaging system servicing method, where producers associate messages with a specific topic and the messaging system routes the messages to subscribers based upon specific topics for which the subscribers are subscribed to ([0050], lines 1-9) comprising:

a plurality of subscribers using a subscription program to subscribe to a subscription related to a topic ([0053] and , [0069], lines 13-15);

a publication program publishing a message related to the topic ([0054]);
a message delivery program sending a copy of the message to the subscription ([0069], lines 1-3);

a subscription dispatcher program making a selection of only one of the plurality of subscribers that are subscribed to the subscription related to the topic to receive the copy of the message ([0064], process wherein multicasting forwarding tables updated on root node; where multiple subscribing nodes share same path, only one message sent to the grouping); wherein the message delivery program delivers the copy of the message to said one of the plurality of subscribers that are subscribed to the subscription related to the topic and not to any other subscriber of the plurality of subscribers that are subscribed to the subscription related to the topic [0056]; where one intermediary node connected to a root node, one copy of message disseminated by root node); and

Dunagan fails to explicitly disclose:

wherein the subscription dispatcher program is separate from the message delivery program and is invoked by the message delivery program

However, Examiner takes Official Notice that embodying the logic of the claimed subscription dispatcher program and message deliver program into separate programs would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill at the time of the claimed invention.

Dunagan teaches a topic publish/subscribe system which selectively sends events (notices) to less than the plurality of subscribed recipients. Among other motives, embodying the logic of the path management process into separate programs would allow for the division of responsibility for selecting a subscriber among many to serve as a distribution point to other subscribers to multiple "serving" entities.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
